

How to get there

Getting to Finca Buenvino
Airport Recommendations:

We suggest that you use Seville airport (90 mins) or Faro or Jerez (150 mins each). (Malaga is further; about three hours and a half.)

Ryanair's daily, direct flights from Stansted, Liverpool, Dublin, Düsseldorf and Pisa to Seville make a long weekend a perfectly viable option.

Clickair also have daily flights from Gatwick - Seville .

Aer Lingus fly several times per week from Cork to Faro, which is only two and a half hours away.

Easyjet fly to Faro from Bristol, Belfast and Newcastle.

flybe fly to Faro from Exeter.

bmibaby flies to Faro from Cardiff

Globespan fly to Faro from Edinburgh and Glasgow

Driving Instructions:

• From Seville Airport (Code: SVQ), 90 mins:

Turn left out of the airport towards Sevilla. After 1 Km or so take the 1st turning on the right signed Isla de La Cartuja and Mérida A66/Huelva.

Follow this road round the north of the city. It takes you over 4 roundabouts, the last of which is just after the looming greyish Olympic Stadium on your left.

At this last roundabout follow the signs to the left (Todas direcciones) and up the ramp signed Mérida A66.

This brings you out onto the causeway heading west over the Guadalquivir Canal. Take the 1st turning right (Blue sign) for Mérida via the A66.

Continue up the M'way for about 35Kms or so and you'll see the turnoff for Aracena and Portugal (N433)

Get onto this road and continue until Km marker number 95, which is right outside our gates, on the right. (You'll see little white posts every 100 metres, and then the larger red and white Km signs, so it's easy to count up from the beginning.)

The important thing is to count carefully so that you do not overshoot. Give adequate signals as you come down the hill, as sometimes drivers don't believe there can be anything to turn off into, and are driving right up behind you. Some manual slowing signals sometimes help if this is the case!

Turn down ramp, through gates and then after 100 metres fork left up the hill. (Unless you are staying in a cottage in which case keep on down the valley) It's a rough country road, about three quarters of a kilometre from gate to main house.

• From Jerez Airport (Code: XRY): Take N1V or Motor way A4 to Seville, then the A66 & N433 towards Aracena/Portugal.

• From Malaga Airport (Code: AGP): Take N340 by-pass on to N331 (signed Antequera) then A92 to Seville, then continue as directions above.

• From Lisbon airport (Code: LIS) : Take the new Vasco de Gama Bridge and then the motorway south as far as the turnoff for Beja and Serpa. Follow the road through to Spain and you will be on the N433, which goes past our gate.

• From Faro take the road signed Loulé and shortly after the Almancil turnoff drive past the stadium and get onto the motorway to Spain (signed Espanha).

Cross the bridge into Spain and then continue past Ayamonte and Huelva on the motorway (signed Sevilla). When you reach the turnoff for San Juan del Puerto and Beas/Trigueros, turn off and head northwards (signed Badajoz) .

Shortly after the town of Zalamea la Real you'll see signs for Rio Tinto. Turn off to Rio Tinto and then follow signs for Aracena. When you reach Aracena follow signs for Portugal. This will bring you out onto the N433 heading in a westerly direction. We are at Km 95 marker on the right hand side (don't overshoot!) It's about 10 minutes from Aracena to our gate.

..if approaching from the West (Portugal direction).

Finca Buenvino is on the left hand side at the 95 Km marker on the N433 road which is the continuation of the Beja-Serpa Rd.on the Spanish side of the border. You are not allowed to turn left off the road, so continue as far as Los Marines, turn into the village, execute a U-turn and come back towards Km 95.
